To the left of the road leading to Tumkur about 3 miles from Bangalore, & close to the feeding channel of the water-supply project, there is a small tope, & the temple in Col: 7 is situated there. The Pujari stated in the statement that the temple is in good order. I inspected it this morning. It is a mud structure, and is fast going to ruin. The hind part, and right wing are in dis-repair, and considering the state in which I found the institution, I do not believe the Pujari performs the puje even once in a fortnight. The managers of the temple knew very well that the institution would be inspected, as I had told them so more than 6 months ago. Still no attempt was made to restore it.

2. Under these circumstances, and under the rule laid down in para 2 of Precis 4, I must recommend the resumption of this inam.
